Fire season officially ends

ROSEBURG – The Douglas Forest Protective Association (DFPA) officially ended the 2025 fire season Friday, October 10, for lands under their protection and management. The end of fire season is a result of recent wetting rains and an overall cooling trend that has returned to the area.

With the end of the fire season, the public and industrial fire restrictions implemented through DFPA will no longer be in effect.

A list of fire restrictions and closures in place through private industrial landowners can be found online https://ofic.com/private-forestland-closures/.

Backyard debris burning outside of incorporated cities will be allowed without a burn permit from DFPA; however, residents should contact their local fire department before conducting any debris burning, as fire restrictions may vary between local fire districts. The visiting Red Devils dominated the time of possession throughout the contest.

South Umpqua scored first on the opening possession of the game. Mason Johnson returned the kickoff 28 yards then Korbin Lussier caught a 33 yard pass from Michael Fischer and Jayden Kaae ran it in from five yards out.

Coquille answered score to knot it at 6-6.

A 46 yard fumble recovery and return late in the first gave Coquille a 12-6.

Neither team could find pay dirt gain until the fourth as Coquille went up by two scores, late in the quarter..

South Umpqua responded with a 82 yard drive in 11 plays culuminating in a two yard run by Crew Donner and with the extra point the Lancers were within five 18-13 with just 36 seconds left on the clock.

They attempted a onsides kick which the red Devils recovered and ran out the clock.

South Umpqua quarterback Michael Fischer finished 16-of-27 for 137 yards.

Lussier finished with seven catchs for 103 yards and Kaae grabbed five balls for 46 yards

The loss evened up the Lancers overall record at 3-3 and dropped them to 0-2 in Special Dsitrict 4 play.

Beware of scammers impersonating bank personnel

Commissioners issue Proclamation for National Breast Cancer Awareness Month

DOUGLAS COUNTY -The Douglas County Board of Commissioners, Tim Freeman, Tom Kress, and Chris Boice issued a proclamation at the Wednesday, October 8, weekly business meeting calling upon all citizens of Douglas County to observe the month of October 2025 as National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

The proclamation was presented by Commissioner Boice, on behalf of the board and acknowledged that, "Today there are more than four million breast cancer survivors in America, however hundreds of thousands more will be diagnosed this year alone, facing a diagnosis that is often frightening and overwhelming. During National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, we honor the memories of all those lost to breast cancer, while we extend strength and support to their families, caregivers, survivors, and those currently undergoing treatment. Breast cancer remains one of the most common cancers affecting women worldwide, with over 2 million new cases diagnosed each year, and countless families impacted by its emotional and physical toll. We know that for millions of families, cancer is deeply personal. Too many Americans know the pain of losing a mother, sister, wife, daughter, or loved one to breast cancer."

presentation can be found on the Douglas County Government Facebook page: https:// www.facebook.com/DouglasCountyeGovernment.

"Today, we are here to promote National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. For nearly four decades the United States has recognized October as National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. It is a time annually devoted to educating everyone about breast cancer, the importance of early detection, and making sure everyone has access to timely, high-quality health care. In 2022, approximately 2.3 million women were diagnosed and another 670,000 died from the disease. These are not just numbers but mothers, sisters, daughters and friends that deserve hope and dignity," stated Commissioner and Board Chair Tim Freeman.

Commissioner Freeman presented National Breast Cancer Awareness Month proclamation certificates to Tammy Turner, Executive Director, Community Cancer Center; Angelia Freeman, Program Manager, Community Cancer Center; Catherine Shipley, Volunteer, Douglas County Cancer Services; Sharon Carlson, Board Chair, Douglas County Cancer Services; Diana Denton, Volunteer, Douglas County Cancer Services; Nanci Bogardus, Volunteer, Douglas Cancer Services; County Cynthia Norona, Clinical Healthcare Worker, Evergreen Family Medicine; Brenda Burks, Clinical Healthcare Worker, Evergreen Family Medicine; David Myhill, Clinical Healthcare Worker, Evergreen Family Medicine; Sarah Swanson, Community Cancer Control Specialist, OHSU Knight Cancer Instiitute; and Nikki Hansen, Public Affairs Officer, Roseburg VA Healthcare System.

The Commissioners were honored to have a number of breast cancer survivors in attendance this morning as well. They would like to express their deepest gratitude to the dedicated medical professionals, healthcare researchers, volunteers, and supporters all over Douglas County who work tirelessly to improve prevention, detection, and treatment with the goal of ending breast cancer as we know it.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month was established in October 1985 as a week-long event sponsored by the American Cancer Society and Imperial Chemical Industries. Breast Cancer Awareness Month later evolved into the month-long international health campaign known today organized by major breast cancer charities every October to increase awareness of the disease and raise funds for research into its cause, prevention, diagnosis, treatment, support, and cure for those affected by breast cancer.

Oregon Department of Early Learning and Care celebrates Head Start Awareness Month

SALEM, - The Department of Early Learning and Care (DELC) and the Oregon Head Start Association (OHSA) visited a Head Start of Lane County preschool classroom located at Lane Community College.

A copy of the live video

Head Start has provided chil- of thousands of children and dren and families with more than quality early childhood education; it has become a generational building block that has touched the lives of more than 40 million children and families across the United States," said Charleen Strauch, Executive Director, Head Start of Lane County. "The crucial work of Head Start is knowing that when the family and child succeed then the community succeeds. Head Start changes lives for the positive."

Earlier this month Governor Kotek issued a statewide proclamation officially designating October as Head Start Awareness Month. The month is celebrated annually across the country as a way to honor the legacy and current work of Head Start in positively impacting the lives of communities, families, and young children.

Education is only one component of the impactful work of Head Start. In addition to early childhood education, Head Start programs support family well-being by connecting families to medical and dental care while helping parents achieve family goals, such as housing stability, continued education, and financial security. Oregon also offers Early Head Start and Head Start Preschool supports for children from Migrant and Seasonal working families along with additional Tribal Head Start programs administered by the federal government.

DELC also administers

the Oregon Prenatal to Kindergarten program with programming available across all 36 Oregon counties. OPK is the state equivalent of the successful federal Early Head Start program that serves children from prenatal to five years old. Since OPK's "For over 60 years, establishment in 1987, tens their families have benefited from the program.

"Head Start Awareness Month has never been more important," said Kate Gonsalves, DELC Communications Director. "At a time of federal instability, this is an important moment to draw awareness to the strong historical roots of Head Start along with the current positive impact Head Start makes for thousands of families across Oregon. DELC joins in celebrating the transformative impact of Head Start Preschool and Early Head Start during Head Start Awareness Month."

These free, high-quality early care and education services and wrap around social supports are available to families including pregnant people and expectant families. Eligible participants include children aged birth through five whose families meet the federal low-income guidelines whose incomes are at or below the federal poverty guidelines or who receive Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Supplemental Security Income, or Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program public assistance services. Other eligible participants include children who are in the foster care system or experiencing homelessness. Some families with special circumstances are also eligible to receive support regardless of family income status. To find a head start center visit: Head Start Center Locator | ECLKC (hhs.gov)

FIRE:

Any commercial tree harvest that requires excess debris to be burned constitutes logging slash and, therefore, requires a burn permit. Permits to burn logging slash can be obtained by calling DFPA at 541-672-6507.

Despite the fire season ending, fire officials advise residents to exercise caution when burning yard debris or using fire in the woods. Several days of sunshine and dry weather during the fall months can create a fire risk even if a week or more of cool, wet conditions precede

When burning yard debris, ensure you have an adequate fire trail around the pile before ignition begins, and have fire tools and a water supply at the burn site. Debris piles should never be left unattended and should be fully extinguished before leaving the area. If a debris burn escapes containment, the party responsible may be held financially responsible for the resulting fire suppression costs and associated damages. Those recreating in wildland areas are reminded that private industrial landowners and neighboring public land management agencies may still have fire restrictions or closures in place on the lands they own or manage. Recreationists should check with the appropriate landowner or public land management agency for the location they plan to recreate before heading to the woods.

The Douglas Forest Protective Association would like to thank the community for its cooperation and support during the 2025 fire sea-

To get help building Tillamook Rock Light, supervisors had to be sneaky

By Finn J.D. John

The eight strangers must have been a little puzzled when they arrived in Astoria, in the fall of 1878. They'd been brought in at considerable expense from far away by the U.S. Lighthouse Board to work on a new lighthouse construction project. But now that they were finally here, they weren't even allowed to go into town for a drink. They were soon whisked away, across the river onto the lonesome wilds of the Washington Territory, and put up in an empty lightkeeper's house at Cape Disappointment.

So, where was the lighthouse they'd been hired to work on? All they knew was that it was on a small, rocky island. But where?

More than three weeks dragged by. Finally, when the seas were relatively calm, the revenue cutter Thomas Corwin arrived to take them to the job site. And an hour or so later, their eyes widened with horror as they beheld what they'd signed up to build.

Staring at the tiny speck of granite jutting out of the flying spray and foam, the workers now understood why their employer had been so secretive — and why it had been necessary to recruit them from far-distant cities that had never heard of Tillamook

The Rock was a fist-shaped hunk of granite shooting straight up out of the sea, a mile and a half away from the coast of Oregon, rising to a height of about 120 feet above the waves. And although the day was calm and the sea fairly smooth, the workers could immediately see that getting onto the rock would be neither easy nor safe. Indeed, as they would later learn, it was word of master mason John R. Trewaves' death trying to clamber onto the rock — he'd slipped and fallen into the sea and been sucked under before anyone could grab him, never to be seen again — that had made it impossible for the government to find anyone in Oregon willing to work on the

Now, looking up at this horrible pile of granite from the thwarts of their surfboat, as the unruly and frothy seas sloshed against the rock, they were about to perform the exact maneuver that had killed Trewaves. They would have to wait for the boat to be in the crest of a wave, leap onto the rock as the boat descended 10 feet into the wave's trough, and scramble as fast as they could to get high enough that the next wave would not wash them off.

Well, they may have been suckered into taking the job, and they were surely scared nearly out of their wits — but the eight quarrymen were not cowards. They stepped forward, ready to do their best. But only four of them were able to get onto the rock before the surfboat caught a wave badly and smashed into the granite surface, doing substantial damage and sending the boat hurrying back to

With a line stretched between the cutter and the rock, they proceeded to load hammers, drills, ringbolts, food, water and canvas tents. And then the cutter retreated, leaving those four men behind, alone on a half-acre guano-covered rock jutting out of an increasingly angry sea. Those four men were, as a near-certainty, the first humans ever to spend a night on Tillamook Rock. In fact, it was five days before the seas moderated enough to land the rest of the party. And almost as soon as they did, the rock welcomed them with one of the massive gales for which that corner of Oregon is famous. The wind screamed, the seas hit the rock hard enough that the men could feel the stone tremble beneath their feet, and sheets of flying, frothy seawater blanketed the entire island. Everything the men had was soaked through with saltwater.

But they made it through, and soon spectators on the mainland could watch their progress through spyglasses from the point. From the beginning, the locals had viewed the scheme to put a lighthouse on the rock as sheer madness, but now it looked as if they were actually going to pull it

But then, there hadn't really been much of a choice. By the late 1870s it had become all too clear to the U.S. Lighthouse Board that a light would have to be stationed south of the Columbia. There were, at the time, two at its mouth — Point Adams on the Oregon side, and Cape Disappointment on the Washington shore — but these couldn't be seen far enough out to sea to keep ships from getting into deadly trouble on the shoals and reefs off Tillamook Head, especially on foggy days.

So the government allocated $50,000 for the job and started looking for a good place to put it.

It quickly became clear that there really wasn't one. Tillamook Head seemed a logical place, but it was 1,000 feet high; a light there would be invisible in heavy fog exactly the weather condition in which a light was most needed.

And then ... there was The

So Tillamook Rock was scouted by district lighthouse superintendent H.S. Wheeler — who managed, after many attempts, to get first himself and then, on a second attempt, surveying instruments onto the rock in the summer

He was almost certainly the first human ever to set foot on the thing.

The investigation proved that a lighthouse could be put on the rock. But it would require a great deal of dynamite to level off its top, and getting on and off the thing was a matter of deadly peril — as was soon demonstrated by the death of John Trewaves.

Still, the only alternative was to accept the loss of dozens of lives and thousands of tons of shipping every year in preventable shipwrecks. That was unacceptable. And so the Lighthouse Board agreed to go ahead with it, and sent emissaries to San Francisco and other faraway ports in search of workers gullible enough to sign onto what the locals considered a suicide mission.

Once there, the crew on the rock worked as quickly as they could, blasting and drilling and chipping out a level surface and laying the massive stone blocks pinned together with heavy copper rods — of which the lighthouse was to be built. Supplies were at first landed via a cable stretched from the rock to the mast of the Thomas Corwin. This was also the workers' only way on or off the island; they'd hang beneath the cable in a breeches buoy and, more often than not, get dunked in the sea at least once when a wave hit the ship. Later a crane was built, which picked supplies off the deck of the ship.

It was a job to remember. The days were usually full of hard and tedious work, and the nights were occasionally full of terror and dread. For the entire winter of 1879-1880 the crew was camped out on that tiny chip of granite under siege by an angry sea, first in a tent and later in a rough wooden shack. That first winter, a hurricane carried off the storehouse, and it was several hungry, fretful weeks before the seas were calm enough to bring the men food.

The following winter would be easier; a summer's worth of construction had provided them with sturdy stone walls to hide behind when the massive hurricane-driven waves slammed themselves into the granite. It was still very hard to find workers willing to take jobs on the rock, though. There is a rumor that the services of Astoria's shanghaiers were tapped to fill this need, and, although that seems unlikely, chances are pretty good that the supervisors dealt with sailors' boardinghouse masters and other shady labor contractors whose men had no choice but to go.

All through 1880 they worked, and by January of the following year the light was almost ready to shine. The workers were given added motivation to move as fast as humanly possible when, on Jan. 6, the 1,300-ton British ship Lupatia sank within sight of the rock, leaving a three-foot section of mainmast jutting out of the water as a silent reminder of just how much depended on their speed. (The only survivor was a dog.)

Finally, on January 21, 1881, the wick of the great lantern was touched to flame for the first time, and the angry North Pacific was lighted for the first time with a powerful beam from the top of Tillamook Rock.

The men had proven that it was possible to build a lighthouse on the least hospitable half-acre of land in the entire continent. Now the question was, could they keep it?

We'll talk about that challenge next week.

Stocking drive benefits ODHS and Shop With a Cop

egon Department of Human Services (ODHS) and the Shop with a Cop program are recipients this holiday season by a H.O.P.E. Drug Court participant working to make sure teens and young children in Douglas County feel the joy of Christmas morning. The community is invited to help by donating stocking items and teen-friendly gifts that will be provided to local youth in need.

Items needed include:

Gift cards to Walmart, Fred Meyer, Ross, Marshalls, Starbucks, Dutch Bros, and local restaurants/fast food spots; Water bottles & Stanley cups; Headphones/Ear buds; Holiday candy; Fidget spinners, stress balls, stickers; Sunglasses/Gloves/Hats; Bowling/movie passes; Hairbrushes and accessories; And more fun stocking stuffers!

Donation Drop-Off Locations are Lilly's Restaurant -2980 NW Stewart Parkway; Big O Tires - 2545 NW Stewart Parkway; and Douglas County Juvenile Department Lobby (Courthouse, 1st

In addition, Lilly's Mexican Cuisine will host a special fundraising meal event on Wednesday, October 23, from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. During this event, 15 percent of all meal proceeds will be donated to support the stocking project and bring holiday cheer to local children. The Douglas County Cleaning Professionals have pledged to match meal proceeds obtained from the event.

The Shop with a Cop program has long been a source of joy in Douglas County, pairing youth with local law enforcement officers for a day of holiday shopping. Selected children pick out gifts for their family members and then help wrap them. Before leaving, each child is given their own gift and a stocking filled with goodies from Santa. The purpose of this event is to help make the holiday season brighter for these children and to give them the opportunity to interact with law enforcement in a positive THEME: SCARY MOVIES of ODHS, this year's added effort focuses on teens, who are often overlooked in traditional toy drives.

"I feel honored to be able to help give back to the same organizations that helped me get to where I am today," said Toby Marlow, H.O.P.E. Drug Court graduate phase participant, "It's been a pleasure to get out in the community and work with everyone to make this all happen."

By donating or enjoying a meal at Lilly's on October 23, community members can help brighten the season for local youth who deserve to feel the excitement of Christmas just like every child.

For more information about donations or the event, please contact Toby Marlow at (541) 860-8995.

The Douglas County H.O.P.E. Drug Court program is preparing to celebrate its 111th graduation on Tuesday, December 16, 2025, at 5:15 p.m. The ceremony will be held at the Douglas County Fairgrounds in the Cascade Hall building.
