Hit and Run suspect arrested

ROSEBUEG – Oregon State Patrol (OSP) investigators located and arrested Brandon James Jensen, 41, on October 16. He was arrested for failure to perform the duties of a driver and tampering with physical evidence in the Hit and Run fatal accident from October 12.. OSP would like to thank the Douglas Interagency Narcotics Team (DINT) and the Douglas County Sheriff's Office for their assistance with this incident.

On October 12 the Oregon State Police responded to a fatal crash involving a pedestrian on Highway 42 near milepost 76 in Douglas County.

The preliminary investigation indicated a male pedestrian, Dustin Rios, 30, of Canyonville, was in the lane of travel for an unknown reason and was struck by an eastbound vehicle on Highway 42 near Grant Smith Road close to the Taco Bell restaurant near Winston. A black Transportation.

Honda passenger vehicle fled the scene after striking the pedestrian.

Despite lifesaving efforts, Rios was pronounced deceased at the scene.

Roadside evidence suggested the involved vehicle was a 2006-2011 black Honda Civic. Evidence from the scene indicated the vehicle sustained damage to the driver's side mirror. Law enforcement also recovered an adhesive transparent window visor believed to have come from the driver's side door.

The highway was impacted for approximately four hours during the on-scene investigation.

OSP was assisted by the Douglas County Sheriff's Office, Winston Police Department, Douglas County Emergency Services, Douglas County Medical Examiner's Office, and the Oregon Department of

Ring named Oregon's 2025 Emergency Management Professional of the Year

DOUGLAS COUNTY – Douglas County Commissioners Tim Freeman, Tom Kress, and Chris Boice are proud to announce that Emily Ring, Douglas County's Emergency Manager, has been selected by the Oregon Department of Emergency Management (OEM) as Oregon's 2025 Emergency Management Professional of the Year. The award was presented to Emily Ring by OEM's Deputy Director Patence Winningham at their 2025 Annual Conference held in Bend earlier this month.

"Emily's sincere commitment to serving her community was clearly demonstrated through her words and personal actions that were above and beyond the call of duty. She completely walks the walk in a field that is largely overlooked. Emily dug in, literally in some cases, to provide support and I love that. She exemplifies the very best of Oregon's already amazing team of emergency managers and we are proud to recognize her for her outstanding contributions," stated Erin McMahon, Director and Homeland Security Advisor, Oregon Department of Emergency Management.

Ring was recognized for her exceptional leadership, dedication, and tireless work during and following the March 2025 Flood Event in Douglas County. Her efforts, along with those of the county commissioners and county staff, were instrumental in pursuing federal funding opportunities that support the county's infrastructure (road damage repair) recovery from the floods. This was a milestone achievement, considering most thought it was impossible, which underscores her commitment to the community's resilience and safety. The county continues to fight hard on the appeal for Federal IA (individual assistance) for March 2025 flood victims and is working closely with the federally assigned Long Term Recovery Group (Glide Rev) to identify any additional resources available for residents.

"Emily's leadership, calm under pressure demeanor, and relentless determination have made an enormous difference for Douglas County," praised Emergency Management Liaison Commissioner and 2025 Board Chair Tim Freeman. "First, I'd like to thank our citizens, our first responders, our amazing

That's when things got

SALEM As of Friday, October 17, all Oregon Department of Forestry districts terminated fire restrictions, marking the end of the 2025 Oregon fire season declara-

"Through aggressive initial attack and the dedication of our firefighters, we had a season with significantly fewer acres burned compared to last year even with more fire starts," said Kyle Williams, ODF Deputy Director of Fire Operations. "This year had the potential to be similar to last year, but ODF firefighters showed up every single day to make sure that did not happen."

Combined, lightning-and human-caused fire brought roughly 100 more fire starts on ODF-protected land compared to 2024 fire season. In response, the departments protection districts and division took on the challenge.

"Due to the agency's aggressive approach to initial attack to preserve natural resources, protect communities, and increase firefighter safety, many fire starts that happened this year were never heard about," said Michael Curran, ODF Fire Protection Division Chief. "In 2025, 94 percent of fires on ODF-protected lands were put out at 10 acres or fewer."

Year to date, there have been 1,135 fires on ODF-protected lands resulting in 24,275 acres burned. ODF Complex Incident Management Teams (CIMT) have been mobilized six times to wildfires this year.

The assignments were to the following incidents: Rowena Fire, Elk Fire, Marks Creek Fire, Grizzley Complex, Flat Fire, andKelsey Peak Fire

Statewide to date, regardless of jurisdiction, there have been 2,569 fires that have burned 288,774 acres.

The start and end of fire season restrictions and regulations are set by each forest protection district based on the conditions in their area including drought, climatic forecasts, and seasonal trends. These restrictions and regulations are on activities prone to start wildfires, such as debris burning and certain equipment use, and are intended as preventative measures during times with elevated wildfire

The arrival of steady soaking rain, coupled with cooler temperatures and shorter days, usually triggers the closure of fire season.

The end of fire season removes ODF imposed fire restrictions on ODF-protected lands. However, many structural fire departments in Oregon still require a permit for debris burning, and slash burning requires a permit year-round, so check with your local fire department or ODF office before starting a

As Oregon transitions to fall and winter, ODF districts across the state are shifting their attention to wildfire prevention, fuels reduction, mitigation and planning efforts.

Lancer v-ball notches victory

TRI CITY - The South Umpqua volleyball squad put the finishing touches on a already emotional Senior night last Thursday, October 16 as they defeated Siuslaw in four sets 25-11, 25-18, 25-27 and 25-11.

The first set saw South Umpqua open up a 10 point advantage in the middle of the set and cruise to the set win.

In the second set the two teams went back and forth before the Lancers pulled away late for the set win

In the third set the two went back and forth the entire set. South Umpqua had an opportunity to win it leading 24-23 but the Vikings got the side out and then took the advantge before eventually winnong the set 27-25.

In the fourth the Lancers jumped out early and took a big lead and cruised to the set win 25-11 and a 3-1 match victory.

Leading the offense for South Umpqua was Regan Ireland with 20 kills and five aces. Danika Richardson again set the table for the Lancers with 37 assists. She also had 13 digs. Khloe Westbrooks had 36 digs while Maddie McIntire had six blocks.

Kylee Pachao added three kills and two digs and Rosalin Chavez had four digs.

The win improved the Lancers overall record to 4-3 and their Special District 4 league record to 1-2

Oregon unveils upgraded health coverage shopping tool

SALEM -- Just in time for open enrollment, the Oregon Health Insurance Marketplace has rolled out an upgraded Window Shopping tool at OregonHealthCare. gov. As of October 15, people in Oregon could use the tool to easily compare 2026 health plans, check if their doctors and prescriptions are covered and see how much financial help they may qualify for.

Open enrollment - November 1, 2025 to January 15, 2026 - is the time when individuals who don't get insurance through their job, Medicare, or the Oregon Health Plan (OHP), can sign up for a Marketplace plan. For many, it is the best chance each year to secure affordable, comprehensive coverage, and the upgraded Window Shopping tool makes it easier than ever to explore options.

"Life doesn't always go as planned, but having health insurance means you and your family can weather the unexpected," said Chiqui Flowers, director of the Oregon Health Marketplace. Insurance "With rising health care costs and the uncertainty of life, open enrollment is the time to make sure you're protected for the upcoming year. Our upgraded tools and local help make the process straightfor-

The Window Shopping tool is available in English and Spanish and provides personalized estimates based on income, age, and location to help people in Oregon find coverage that fits their life and budget. Key updates and enhancements to the Window Shopping tool at OregonHealthCare.gov for 2026 include:

Enhanced plan comparisons so you can see real costs before you buy. Expanded provider and prescription lookup features, making it easier to confirm your care team and medications are covered.

Updated savings estimates that reflect financial help available to most people in Oregon.

Stronger benefit transparency, including details about coverage for services like gender-affirming care, preventive services, naturopathy, and mental health support.

Nearly all people in Oregon, 97 percent, now have health coverage. All marketplace plans include essential health benefits such as prescriptions, mental health care, maternity and pediatric services, free preventive care, and more.

Most services are covered before you meet your deductible. The only way to be sure your doctor or prescription is covered is to check — and the Window Shopping tool makes that simple.

At the end of this year, some of the extra savings that were temporarily available to lower monthly premiums are currently expected to end. That means the amount of financial help you get may look a little different than it has in the past.

Affordable coverage is still available, and many people will continue to qualify for premium tax credits to bring costs down.

To see what your costs might look like for 2026, you can use the updated Window Shopping tool at Oregon-HealthCare.gov to preview plans and savings before open enrollment begins. It's a good idea to explore your options early, so you're ready to choose the plan that fits your health needs and your budget.

Free local help is available to guide people in Oregon through enrollment. Licensed insurance agents and certified community partners can walk you through your options and answer questions, in-person or virtually. Visit Oregon-HealthCare.gov/GetHelp to connect with an expert.

DFPA urges caution when burning yard debris

ROSEBURG-Sunny days composting, chipping, or reare ideal for yard work, but exercise caution when burning yard debris. If you decide burning is your best option for disposal of woody materials, safety is key. In the past decade, escaped debris burns caused half of the fires outside the fire season in spring and fall.

Residents are encouraged to avoid burning when abnormally warm or windy conditions are in the forecast and should always follow these tips when using fire as a tool.

county staff, our cities and our community partners. I want to especially thank Emily for bringing everyone together. This recognition is well-deserved." Ring joined the Douglas County Emergency Management team in April 2023 and worked under former Douglas County Emergency Manager Wayne Stinson before taking the lead as Department Director in September 2023. Before being hired by Douglas County, she spent six years working for Josephine County as the Assistant Emergency Manager, then the County Emergency Manager. Ring's work history includes roles as a crisis counselor, domestic violence case manager, national resource ranger and seasonal wildland firefighter. She holds a bachelor's degree in social services with an emphasis in geographic information system technology and anthropology from the University of Wisconsin and Eastern Oregon University.

She also has a master's degree in biological sciences and resource management from Green Mountain University in Vermont.

Since its inception in 1979, the Douglas County Emergency Management Division worked largely behind the scenes under the direction of the Douglas County Sheriff's Office, developing plans and procedures to prepare for and respond to disasters. In September 2023, the division evolved into a full-fledged independent county department.

The Douglas County Emergency Management Department now reports directly to the Douglas County Board of Commissioners. The department collaborates closely with county commissioners, public safety and elected officials, nonprofit organizations, and other municipal and government agencies to enhance community preparedness and resilience.

In accepting the honor, Ring expressed gratitude for the recognition and for the dedicated county and community partners she works with every day.

"I was truly honored and humbled to receive this award," said Ring. "But this recognition really belongs to our entire county team, our first responders, and the community members who came together during and after the flood. Their teamwork and resilience are what made recovery possible."

Offbeat Oregon History

Monmouth's 150-year tradition of Prohibition in Oregon

By Finn J.D. John

On May 18, 2010, a select group of Oregonians became the last voters in the history of the western United States to vote on a repeal of Prohibition.

This wasn't marijuana prohibition — it was the old 1920s kind: speakeasies, blind pigs, the Volstead Act, the W.C.T.U. The kind of Prohibition that was repealed everywhere else in the western U.S. in (or not long after) 1933. You see, alone among all the towns and cities of every U.S. state west of the Mississippi River, the town of Monmouth, Oregon, still outlawed the sale of ardent spirits — as it had for 150 years.

The proponents of repeal had a pretty compelling argument. Monmouth had already legalized sales of beer and wine, back in 2002. Continuing to hold the line against hard-liquor sales was pointless, and it was holding back business for the town's restaurants.

But on the other side, very few of the voices raised in support of the old dry-law came from the traditional temperance movement. Most of the "no" votes came from residents who simply thought it was cool that they lived in the only remaining "dry" town west of the Mississippi River.

Monmouth had been a dry town since its earliest founding back in the late 1850s — until 2002, bone-dry. The town was settled by a religious community of members of the Disciples of Christ Church from Monmouth, Ill., who arrived in 1852 and started mapping out a Christian Utopia in the wilderness. They built a big church, founded Monmouth University (now Western Oregon University), and turned to the work of making for themselves a new life of working hard and living right in a fresh new land.

But then, in 1858, the serpent slipped into their Garden of Eden in the form of a storekeeper named Raphael Lande. Lande, it appears, had borrowed heavily from the hard-eved Yankee traders of Portland — Ladd, Reed & Co., specifically — to open a mercantile store in Monmouth, stocked with plenty of liquor. He must have anticipated a booming business, because he stuffed the place with $2,500 to $3,000 worth — that's $65,000 to $80,000 in modern coin.

Lande soon found himself trapped hopelessly between his wholesalers in Portland who no doubt badly wanted to open a distribution channel in the new town — and the equally adamant city fathers. To his dismay he soon learned that his business had prompted virtually every Monmouth family to join together in a petition to the state Legislature for a city charter, with the express intention of using the power it would give them to run Lande and his den of iniquity out of town.

Immediately upon receiving the charter in January 1859, the newly incorporated city promulgated a Prohibition ordinance. Lande sued, but to no avail; the city ordinance permitted the townsfolk to seize his $80,000 rotgut stash and dump it in the gutter if he didn't pack it out of town forthwith. This he appears to have neglected to do, or perhaps he'd hoped to call their bluff. Although historian Kyle Jansson was unable to find any record of the action, he did find out that Lande's properties were foreclosed on just one year later to pay off Ladd, Reed & Co. — something that surely wouldn't have been necessary if he'd had the sense to move his inventory out of harm's way.

Lande's departure marked the beginning of a 150-year run for Monmouth as a dry town. Monmouth was bonedry throughout the 1870s, when the temperance movement was growing in strength and the church-going ladies of Portland were bearding the liquor-peddling lion in his very den by donning their Sunday best and gathering for temperance pray-ins in Stumptown's seediest and loathliest tippling houses and rum joints. In 1883 Monmouth formed one of Oregon's first Women's Christian Temperance Union chapters (and one of its most long-lasting as well; it remained an important force in Monmouth well into the 1970s).

Meanwhile, just two miles away to the east, a very different town had sprung up on the banks of the Willamette River. Founded by a far more freewheeling group of settlers, the town of Independence was everything Monmouth was not when it came to alcohol policy. Independence's first business had been a saloon, and plenty more had followed. By the 20th century, Independence had already started taking on the role of Monmouth's municipal liquor cabinet, for residents whose personal habits didn't line up with their town's official policies.

two towns was startling. In 1914, when the first successful statewide Prohibition vote was held, Independence voted no by a 58—percent margin, while the rest of Polk Coun-(including Monmouth) went for it 2 to 1. And again, in 1933 when Prohibition was repealed, 62 percent of Monmouth voters voted no, whereas the rest of the state overwhelmingly voted yes again, by a 2 to 1 margin.

Following the end of nationwide Prohibition, a small but growing minority in Monmouth started trying to change things. In 1936, 1950, 1954 and 1976 they gave it the old college try, only to be rebuffed by a majority of citizens who preferred to keep things as they were. In 1976 they were slapped down by a 4-to-1 margin.

In 1967, the Oregon legislature voted to cut off Monmouth's liquor-tax revenue, reasoning that it wasn't contributing, so why should it benefit? But, of course, Monmouth was contributing plenty; its citizens were simply driving a mile down the road to Independence. The city attorney successfully argued that although Monmouth might not be selling the liquor, Monmouth residents were definitely drinking it — and showed the law-enforcement statistics to prove it. The state backed down and restored the funding.

As the 1960s ripened into the 1970s, Monmouth's motivation for its Prohibition policy started changing. Toward the end, fewer voters were motivated by a desire for temperance per se, and more were simply voting to keep Monmouth unique.

"The most prevalent feeling of those who don't really have anything against alcohol," the Polk Sun wrote in Sept. 8, 1976 edition, "is that Monmouth will be just like any other small town if they go wet. Being 'dry' to them is like being the only folks on the block to own an Edsel."

As late as 1994, the town was celebrating its dry heritage at a festival called the Purely Victorian Tea Festival, featuring The Temperance Singers in gorgeous Belle Epoque-era dresses and hats belting out grand old 1870s Prohibition Crusade songs in the city park.

But by the end of the 1990s, the moral case for Prohibition had faded to almost nothing, and support for the law was all about owning that metaphorical Edsel. And even the proudest Edsel owner can be turned into a bitter ex-Edsel fan by getting stranded by the side of the road one too many times. Essentially, that's what happened in Monmouth.

In 2002, the town's last full-size grocery market closed its doors. Its proprietor — the fifth since 1967 was quite frank about why no one could make a go of selling groceries in Monmouth: It was Prohibition. Most of Monmouth did drink, and it was more convenient to do their shopping a mile away in Independence, where Roth's Friendly Foodliner and Winco Foods awaited and offered prices the local market couldn't touch — prices that were only possible because of liquor sales.

That's a big part of why Monmouth voted, in 2002, to open its doors to beer and wine sales — holding out, for the time being, against distilled spirits; whiskey drinkers would have to wait for the 2010 election.

And with the results of that election, Monmouth officially joined the rest of the state. Exactly 1.5 centuries after the last flask of Ladd, Reed & Co. rotgut legally changed hands in Monmouth, the liquor trade had finally come back to the thirsty little town.

But even the most ardent opponents of the city's prohibition ordinance were a little sad to see it go.

MORE SCENES FROM THE WICKED WALKABOUT HELD ON SECOND AVENUE IN MYRTLE CREEK ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17
