

Commissioners issue proclamation for Wreaths Across America Day

DOUGLAS COUNTY — The Douglas County Commissioners Tim Freeman, Tom Kress, and Chris Boice issued a proclamation Wednesday, December 3, at the weekly business meeting calling upon all citizens of Douglas County to observe Wreaths Across America Day, in celebration of the Annual Wreaths Across America (WAA) event taking place on Saturday, December 13. The mission of Wreaths Across America is to “REMEMBER the Fallen, HONOR Those Who Serve and TEACH Our Children the Value of Freedom” with the laying of remembrance Christmas wreaths on veterans’ graves on the second or third Saturday of December each year. The Commissioners are honored to support the National Wreaths Across America event, especially the efforts of the local community in placing wreaths on veterans’ graves at the Roseburg National Cemetery.

“Wreaths Across America has been a joy for me to be able to participate in and something I look forward to every year. It has grown into a community effort, which is great.

And it is something we all take an immense amount of pride in doing. It’s an honor for me to have the opportunity to start with the reading of our Wreaths Across America proclamation. All of the people that helped last year were absolutely instrumental in making the event operate smoothly. And every one of them that we have called to help this year said yes, again. We could not have been able to accomplish our goals without the community support that we have here in Douglas County!” – Commissioner Boice

The proclamation was presented by Commissioner Boice, on behalf of the Board and acknowledged, “we recognize that the mission of Wreaths Across America is to Remember, Honor, Teach. “REMEMBER the fallen. HONOR those who serve. TEACH the next generation the value of freedom”. The 2025 Wreaths Across America theme is LIVE WITH PURPOSE. This year’s local ceremony honors the legacy of United States Air Force Veteran, John Pierson, whose pas-

Announcement to our readers

For many years, our newspaper, The Douglas County Mail, has been dedicated to providing trustworthy local news, thoughtful storytelling, and a reliable voice for our community. We remain committed to that mission. However, we must also adapt to the realities facing the journalism industry today.

Like many publications across the country, we have experienced declining advertising revenues, a primary source of funding for our newsroom. At the same time, printing and postage costs have continued to rise sharply, making weekly physical production increasingly unsustainable.

After careful consideration, and in order to preserve the quality of our reporting and ensure the long-term stability of our publication, if we cannot secure some significant additional advertisers, we will be transitioning to a fully virtual, digital-only platform as of January 1, 2026.

This change will allow us to continue delivering the news you rely on—more quickly, more efficiently, and without the financial strain that print distribution now imposes. Our digital edition will include all the content you’ve come to expect, with additional features made possible by an online format.

We understand this is a significant shift, and we deeply appreciate your support and understanding as we take this necessary step. Our commitment to serving our readers remains stronger than ever, and we look forward to continuing that service in our new digital home.

Thank you for being part of our community.

The City of Myrtle Creek Christmas tree came to light Saturday, December 6, as the centerpiece of the 19th annual Grand Illumination. City officials and staff handed out cookies, hot chocolate and coffee and following the lighting of the tree Santa made an appearance. This year the city again decided to close off Second Avenue between Main and Oak streets to allow for a safe corridor for citizens to view the lighting. It was also better for handing out the refreshments. See more photos of the event on Page 11.

Lady Wolves blitz Lancers

DAYS CREEK – The Days Creek girls basketball squad got it going early in their Invitational tournament Friday evening, December 5. The Wolves took on South Umpqua in the first round and lit up the scoreboard in the first quarter as they jumped out to a commanding 20-0 lead after the first quarter and never looked back.

In the second quarter things slowed down a bit on the scoring side and first year Head Coach Rachel Matchett played her reserves most of the quarter.

Days Creek still took the quarter 6-2 with South Umpqua’s first points coming with two minutes left in the half to give the Wolves a 26-2 halftime dvantage.

In the third the starters took over again as they scored in double digits, 12, for the quarter while holding the Lancers to just four to build their lead to 38-6 after three frames.

In the fourth the Wolves again slowed down and even allowed South Umpqua to outscore them in the quarter, 5-4, to bring the final tally to 42-11.

Sophomore Jazmin Estrada was also in double figures with 11 points. She also had five rebounds, two blocks and three steals. Mackenzie Davison added eight points and eight boards along with four steals while Maggie Brown chipped in with eight points, seven caroms, three assists and three steals.

Riddle remains undefeated

POWERS -- It may have taken them a extra frame to keep their undefeated record in tact but that’s just what the Riddle boys basketball squad did on Saturday evening, December 6, against Southwest Christian defeating them 62-54 in overtime.

It might have never gotten to that point if not for a last second put back shot by Nick McKinney that fell through the net to tie the contest 52-52.

In the overtime period it was all Riddle as they outscored Southwest Christian 9-2 to take the 61-54 victory.

Leading the way for the Irish was Layton Lewis who poured in 26 points.

A quartet of Irish; Layton Rainwater, Stephen Nordyke, Rafeal Lopez and Solomon Rhea, all contributed eight points each.

McKinney had 11 rebounds, six assits and three points.

The game was played at Powers High School.

This marked the third game in as many days for Riddle who earlier in the week defeated Chemewa 64-56 and Prospect 80-58.

OHA urges vaccinations as flu activity rises, holidays approach

PORTLAND — As influenza activity increases over the next two months before its expected peak in early spring, health officials urge everyone to get their flu vaccine, particularly as people gather indoors to celebrate the holidays.

So far, hospitalizations remain low. But the percentage of positive flu tests is on the rise.

“The flu season generally continues into the spring, which means flu activity will continue to increase for many months,” said Howard Chiou, M.D., Ph.D., medical director for communicable diseases and immunizations at Oregon Health Authority’s Public Health Division. “That’s why it’s never too late to get the flu vaccine.”

Chiou added that getting vaccinated now is especially important. “People will leave Thanksgiving, not only with leftovers, but also with the flu. It’s not too late to get your flu shot, especially before the upcoming holidays. The flu

Following the reading of the proclamation a video from the national Wreaths Across America nonprofit organization was played. The video explains why the wreath is a symbol of honor, respect and victory. Visit the following link to watch the video: What is a Veteran’s Wreath? | Wreaths Across America Veterans’ Wreaths. Additionally, a copy of the proclamation presentation can be found on the Douglas County Government Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/DouglasCountyGovernment>.

Commissioner Boice acknowledged the generous support of local sponsors who have made the purchasing and laying of our 7,000 wreaths an annual tradition and legacy project in Roseburg. He then presented the attending title sponsors with a photo book from the 2024 Douglas County Wreaths Across America Event and a specially designed Douglas County Wreaths Across America coin. shot is the best way to help make sure you don’t miss out on holiday festivities or get other people sick.”

Last year’s flu season in Oregon was the worst in the state’s recent history. OHA releases the latest information on the flu season in its weekly FluBites report. Information on flu activity can also be found on Oregon’s Respiratory Virus Data dashboard.

Flu is a contagious, respiratory tract infection caused by the influenza virus.

Symptoms can include fever, cough, sore throat, stuffy and runny nose, muscle aches, headache and fatigue. It can result in mild to severe illness, including hospitalization and death.

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP), the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) and the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP) recommend seasonal flu vaccination for everyone ages 6 months or older.

Nearly 1 million people in Oregon have been vaccinated so far this year, which is about 5% lower than at the same time last year. The flu vaccination rate has been in decline for several years.

Certain groups, including older adults, young children, pregnant people and people with certain health conditions, are at higher risk for serious complications from influenza.

The hospitalization rate is highest for people ages 65 and older, but flu seasons are unpredictable and even young and healthy people can develop severe disease.

The best way people can protect themselves and others is by getting a flu vaccine every year.

People can get the COVID-19, influenza and RSV vaccines by contacting their health plan, health care provider, county public health clinic or federally qualified health center. Parents and caregivers of children can also search for a clinic by calling 211 or visiting 211info.org.

“I have had the honor to attend almost every one of the Wreaths laying events here in Roseburg over the years. As Commissioner Boice mentioned, they are meaningful. One of the most important things with Wreaths Across America is the mission to Remember, Honor and Teach - by remembering the fallen, honoring those who served and teaching the next generation the value of freedom. I think it’s also important for us to remember the veterans who are with us still and the sacrifices they have made. It’s important to honor veterans every single day and to teach the next generation to find and seek out those veterans that are still with us to learn from them, listen to their stories, and gain knowledge from them,” said Commissioner Freeman

The John Pierson Memorial Wreaths Across America Event will take place on Saturday, December 13, at the Roseburg National Cemetery starting at 1:00 p.m. The commissioners encourage you to join them in honoring veterans. Oregon’s own would-be fascist dictator: Gov. Charles Martin

By Finn J.D. John

Remember General Jack D. Ripper, the character from the 1964 movie “Dr. Strangelove; or, How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb”? Can you imagine what might have happened if General Ripper had been elected governor?

For Oregonians, just a few years ago, it wouldn’t be too much of a stretch. In 1934, voters elected a retired major general named Charles Henry Martin — known to the soldiers assigned to his care during the First World War as “Old Iron Pants.” And although Martin isn’t known to have gone on any anti-fluoridation rants or spluttered about “precious bodily fluids,” his political style was more than a little reminiscent of Ripper’s ... and, of course, it’s not a work of fiction.

“If things come to a crisis,” he wrote to a sympathetic fellow military man in 1937, while discussing the likelihood of a Communist takeover in America, “there are enough strong men left in the country to handle it properly. ... The Italians wouldn’t submit; they organized their blackshirts. The Germans wouldn’t submit, so they had their brownshirts and Hitler. I don’t believe Americans will submit.”

Left unmentioned in this remark was any suggestion for who might play the role of the American “strong man” analogous to Mussolini or Hitler, but it was clear that he felt himself to be up to the challenge.

Charles H. Martin stands athwart Oregon history like a cartoon supervillain, a larger-than-life caricature of a would-be fascist dictator. He established his own forces of secret police; his agents infiltrated every leftist organization in the state with undercover agents tasked with reporting, provoking, and occasionally soliciting perjured testimony. He responded to at least one labor strike by deploying the National Guard and State Police with orders to shoot to kill. And according to historian Gary Murrell, he gave official support to a plan to euthanize 900 inmates at the Oregon State Institution for the Feeble-Minded as a cost-saving measure. These are just a handful of the most egregious things Martin is remembered for.

On the other hand, we have him to thank for the federal government’s decision to build the Bonneville Dam and establish the Bonneville Power Administration in 1934. Ironically, his attempts to reserve the benefits of Bonneville for his plutocrat friends was a significant factor in his eventual downfall.

But Oregon, and America, would have to wait a long time for that downfall, and a lot of damage would get done before it happened.

Charles Henry Martin was born near the town of Grayville, in southern Illinois, during the American Civil War. He was the third of 10 children, with two older brothers, and his father was determined that his oldest boy would pursue a military career. Charles was happily pursuing his goal of becoming a gentleman-farmer and writer when the unthinkable happened: His two older brothers drowned in the Wabash River. One of them got in trouble, the other dove in to save him, and both perished.

A titanic clash of wills ensued. But in the end, the old man had his way, and Charles reluctantly went off to West Point.

Charles had a rough time at West Point, characterized at first by extreme homesickness and misery, but he eventually graduated 19th in a class of 65. He was assigned to an infantry regiment stationed in Fort Vancouver, just across the river from Portland.

During the decade in which he was stationed in Vancouver, Martin put down roots in the Portland area. In 1897, he married a Portland girl — Louise Jane Hughes, daughter of Portland attorney Ellis G. Hughes.

The very next year, when the Spanish-American war broke out, the young officer — by now a captain — was sent to the Philippines to help organize, with the Filipino rebels, resistance to the Spanish. Shortly after that, when the Boxer Rebellion broke out in China, he was dispatched to China to help with that.

These operations — especially the experience in China, where the allied European and American troops storming through the Chinese countryside looking for rebelling “boxers” adopted a sort of “kill ‘em all and let God sort ‘em out” attitude — seem to have crystalized Martin’s attitudes toward members of other ethnic groups into frank disdain. In this he was hardly unique among imperial-age military men. When it’s one’s job to kill people, thinking of them as subhuman beasts to be eradicated rather than as brother men makes that job a lot more psychologically tolerable. And that kind of reductive, dehumanizing thinking can and did become a lifelong habit for an entire generation of British, French and American military men.

Following the Boxer Rebellion, Martin returned to the states and served in various functions with great discipline and competence, much of it in the Portland area. In 1913, the Army lent him to the limping, ramshackle Oregon National Guard so that he might instill some proper military discipline into it. In 1916 he was deployed to reinforce Gen. John Pershing in his operations against Poncho Villa in Mexico.

And then the U.S. entered the First World War.

Martin, by now a full-bird colonel, was temporarily promoted to brigadier general and put in charge of training camps. It’s in this capacity that he earned the nickname “Iron pants.”

His success in breaking down recruits to build them back up as soldiers led to Martin being given a particularly noteworthy assignment near the end of the war — an assignment that would probably be the ugliest stain on his career. The military authorities had a problem that they wanted his help with. It seemed that the African American soldiers who had signed up to go to France and fight had been treated as equals by the French, rather than as subhumans. Despite increasingly desperate attempts by white officers to induce the French to adopt the proper attitude of arrogance and disdain toward them, the black doughboys were enjoying an unprecedented level of social freedom and acceptance. The worry was that they had gotten used to this, and would use their new status as war heroes to demand similar equality upon their return to the states.

What was needed, according to military authorities, was a re-indoctrination clinic of sorts, under the guise of “training.” And who better to administer that training than old Iron Pants?

Martin himself had no use for blacks, opining many times that they were inferior in every way to himself and his white friends, and was thoroughly on board with the plan to “put them back in their place.”

Thus did Charles Henry Martin, future governor of the state of Oregon, become the central figure in one of the most shameful events in American military history — the deliberate, systematic breaking of the spirit of an entire divisional cohort of American combat veterans and war heroes.

The black veterans were given the most degrading duties Martin could find for them, including cleaning out toilet pits, burying rotting corpses, and the kind of meaningless rock-breaking busywork one associates with prison chain gangs. They were worked all day and given no liberty to leave the camp. Meanwhile, Martin and his staff cultivated rumors back home that they had been running amok in France, raping French girls by the dozens, and Martin openly referred to them as the “rapist division.” (An investigation later revealed that for the entire war, just two charges of rape were made against members of the division.)

It is worth noting that Martin, after the war, blamed the low status of this “training” assignment for the fact that his temporary promotion to general was not made permanent after the war. Perhaps lingering resentment of that belief is why, after the war, Martin filed a report that would become the core of the U.S. Army’s policy on African American soldiers from the early 1920s until the early years of the Second World War. It was designed to minimize blacks’ access to the kind of combat roles in which they might distinguish themselves as heroes, to avoid having black officers over the rank of first lieutenant, and most of all to ensure that no white soldier or officer ever had to take an order from any black man of any rank whatever.

Martin’s Army career ended with his retirement in 1927. He left the Army a very different man than he had been when he entered it. A merciless disciplinarian with a worshipful attitude toward vested authority and a growing fear of communism, he was already starting to show signs of the Gen. Jack D. Ripper-style paranoia that his political career would reveal after his return to civilian life.

We’ll talk about that political career in next week’s column.

OWF urges drivers to watch for wildlife

PORTLAND – As deer, elk, and other species begin their fall migration, the Oregon Wildlife Foundation (OWF) is reminding drivers to stay alert and help prevent wildlife-vehicle collisions.

Each year, an estimated 5,000 large animals are struck and killed on Oregon roads, with peak collisions occurring in October and November when animals migrate to lower elevations.

Collisions not only threaten wildlife but also endanger motorists.

“Slowing down to admire the beauty of our changing seasons also lessens the likelihood of a collision with wildlife on the move this time of year,” said Tim Greseth, Executive Director of Oregon Wildlife Foundation. “Deer, elk and other wildlife are moving from their higher elevation summer range to where they’ll spend the winter, which puts more of them on our highways and roads.”

Drivers can reduce their risk by slowing down at dawn and dusk, observing wildlife crossing caution signs, and avoiding sudden swerves.

When one animal crosses, others may follow.

The Watch for Wildlife specialty license plate, in part, helps fund projects that make roads safer for both people and wildlife, undercrossings, overcrossings, and fencing. Proceeds from the sale and renewal of this plate support efforts to improve and restore habitat connectivity statewide.

“Not only is the Watch for Wildlife plate nice-looking, but the money it raises helps reduce wildlife-vehicle collisions throughout the year,” said Mo Montgomery, OWF External Communications Manager. “Plate holders should feel good knowing their license plate saves lives.”

Oregonians can order the Watch for Wildlife plate through the DMV or visit myowf.org/watchforwildlife to learn more about how plate sales fund critical habitat connectivity projects throughout the state.

For more information on wildlife movement in Oregon, visit myowf.org/wildlifemoves.

Christmas is Coming!

Every year, while waiting for Christmas, people around the world place glowing candles in their windows. Lights are hung on houses and trees. Cheerful fires are lighted in fireplaces. Bonfires and Yule logs blaze. Candlelight services are held in churches.

Burning candles and colored lights show our joy and hope. Candles in windows show a welcoming home and hearth. Lights remind some people of stars in the sky. All kinds of light can send a message of warmth and peace to all.

On the first day of Christmas, my true love gave to me...

... a _____ in a pear tree!

Most people start shopping and wrapping gifts after the Thanksgiving holiday and continue until Christmas Eve. The well-known song "The Twelve Days of Christmas" tells about gifts given and received from December 25th until January 5th. The next day is January 6th, the day Christians believe the Three Kings brought gifts to the Holy Child.
